

ADAMS COUNTY
invites applications for the position of:

Medicolegal Death Investigator / Deputy Coroner

SALARY: $54,048.14 - $75,667.40 Annually

OPENING DATE: 02/04/16

CLOSING DATE: 03/03/16 04:30 PM

PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY:

The Office of the Coroner is governed by state law and is responsible for investigating unexpected and/or unnatural deaths that occur within, or are related to incidents occurring within, Adams and Broomfield Counties. The Office serves a total of ten municipalities and one town, and covers a geographic area of approximately 1,200 square miles. The Office receives approximately 3,500 reported deaths per year. Each death investigator handles approximately 440 reported deaths per year and responds to approximately 175 death scenes per year.

The Office's primary responsibilities are to conduct death investigations with the purpose of ascertaining the cause and manner of death of individuals that die under the jurisdiction of the office, establish the identity of the deceased, and notify the decedent's legal next-of-kin that his/her death has occurred. Work is characterized by independent planning and decision making, logical reasoning, and problem solving. Investigator must take initiative, exercise good judgment, pay strict attention to detail, be able to multi-task, and adhere to policies and procedures. Investigator must be able to work efficiently independently and collectively, and delegate appropriately. Work involves a variety of sensitive and confidential material. The ideal candidate is organized, self motivated, adaptable, detail oriented, mature, dedicated, and able to work under heightened emotional situations and unpleasant conditions. The Investigator is a representative of the Office of the Coroner and is involved in a myriad of interpersonal contacts. Such contacts require a high degree of interpersonal communication skills, professionalism, tact, and etiquette.

Environmental Demands

The investigator spends approximately 70% of the time in an office environment and approximately 30% of the time in a field environment with associated conditions and hazards. The job involves exposure to malodors, decomposed bodies, contagious diseases, vermin, and other hazards, as well as traumatic deaths, such as child and elder abuse cases, mass fatalities, violent homicides, motor vehicle fatalities, and mutilated and severed remains.

EXAMPLES OF IMPORTANT AND ESSENTIAL DUTIES:

The following duty statements are illustrative of the essential functions of the job and do not include other non essential or marginal duties that may be required. The omission of specific duties does not necessarily exclude them from the position requirements. The Chief Coroner reserves the right to modify or change the duties or essential functions of the job at any time.

Working under the general supervision of the Chief Deputy Coroner, the Medicolegal Death Investigator:
